Answer:

The Bible teaches us that God created one man and one woman as the origin of the entire human race. This foundational truth is stated clearly in the book of Genesis:

> So God created man in his own image, in the image of God he created him; male and female he created them.
> Genesis 1:27, ESV

This verse emphasizes both the unity and dignity of all human beings. God did not create multiple races or ethnicities in the beginning. He made one man—Adam—and one woman—Eve, from whom all human beings have descended.

> The man called his wife’s name Eve, because she was the mother of all living.
> Genesis 3:20, ESV

This means Eve is the mother of every human being—regardless of race, skin tone, or ethnicity. The idea that Adam and Eve were White, Black, Asian, or any modern classification is a misunderstanding of Scripture and history. Adam and Eve were created in a unique state of perfection, clothed in God's glory—a glory that was lost when they sinned.

The Fall and the Beginning of Change

Adam and Eve were created sinless and immortal. But when they disobeyed God and ate from the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil (Genesis 3), sin entered the world, and with it came death, corruption, and decay.

> Therefore, just as sin came into the world through one man, and death through sin, and so death spread to all men because all sinned.
> Romans 5:12, ESV

This fall affected their bodies, their environment, and all their descendants. The glory they once had faded (Romans 3:23), and their appearance began to change. For the first time, they felt shame and fear (Genesis 3:10), and their bodies became subject to suffering and environmental stress—sunlight, thorns, sweat, and disease (Genesis 3:17–19). Humanity began to age and die.

This shift also marked the beginning of physical adaptation over generations. As people moved and settled in different climates after the fall and later after the flood, their bodies adapted to the regions they lived in—producing the diversity we see today.

The Flood and the Division of Nations

By the time of Noah, the earth had become full of violence and wickedness. God judged the world with a flood (Genesis 6–9), saving only Noah, his family, and the animals in the ark. After the flood, God instructed Noah’s sons—Shem, Ham, and Japheth—to repopulate the earth:

> And you, be fruitful and multiply, increase greatly on the earth and multiply in it.

> Genesis 9:7, ESV

From these three sons, the nations of the world were born (see Genesis 10). Eventually, people gathered together and sought to build a tower (the Tower of Babel) in rebellion against God’s command to spread out.

> And the Lord said, ‘Behold, they are one people, and they have all one language… Come, let us go down and there confuse their language…’ So the Lord dispersed them from there over the face of all the earth.
> Genesis 11:6–8, ESV

From that point, languages were confused, and people were scattered across the globe—settling in different regions and climates. Over time, people began to adapt physically and culturally to their environments:

In hotter regions (e.g., Africa): darker skin tones developed due to higher melanin levels protecting against the sun.

In colder climates (e.g., Europe or parts of Asia): lighter skin and longer hair became more common due to lower sunlight and the body’s need to absorb more Vitamin D.

In island and jungle regions: adaptation produced various features based on local survival needs.

These changes happened gradually over generations and were not a sign of different races—but of one humanity adapting to God’s diverse creation.

All People Are One in God’s Eyes

The Bible strongly affirms the unity of the human race. There is one Creator, one origin, and one destiny for all people. The Apostle Paul declares:

> And he made from one man every nation of mankind to live on all the face of the earth, having determined allotted periods and the boundaries of their dwelling place.

> Acts 17:26, ESV

Paul goes on to explain that God created humanity so that we would seek Him (Acts 17:27). This shows that no ethnic group is superior or inferior—all are made in God’s image and all are in need of salvation through Jesus Christ.

In Christ, the walls that divide humanity are broken down:

> There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is no male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus.
> Galatians 3:28, ESV

God’s ultimate plan is to redeem a people from every tribe, language, people, and nation through the blood of Christ.

> Worthy are you... for you were slain, and by your blood you > ransomed people for God from every tribe and language and people and nation.

> Revelation 5:9, ESV

In Conclusion:

Adam and Eve were the first human beings, created uniquely in God’s image—not according to any modern racial identity.

All people today—regardless of skin tone or ethnicity—descend from them.

The differences we see in appearance today are due to generational adaptation to climate and geography, not because God created different “races.”

Theologically, there is only one race—the human race—created by God and redeemed through Christ.

Racism and division are not of God. Unity in Christ is God’s goal for humanity.

Let us then walk in love, knowing that we are all brothers and sisters under one Creator—and one Redeemer, the Lord Jesus Christ.

Shalom.
