

Recently, a woman named Sylvia Browne gained widespread recognition across the world, even though she passed away in 2013. The attention stems from her book titled “End of Days”, in which she wrote about several end-time prophecies. One of these was a prediction of a respiratory pandemic that would emerge around 2020—now known as COVID-19. She accurately described a severe illness affecting the lungs that would spread globally, then mysteriously vanish, only to reappear ten years later and disappear completely.

However, another of her prophecies, which is the focal point of this message, claims that in the year 3020, strange beings called “vampires” will emerge on Earth. According to her, these will be resurrected humans who survive by drinking human blood and will not be able to withstand sunlight. Eventually, she says, they will be destroyed and life will return to normal. This prediction has led many to reconsider their views on future events.

But have you ever taken time to examine her other prophecies? I’m not writing this to criticize her, but I want you to learn something important by the end of this article. Some of her failed prophecies include:

In 2010, she predicted that Aliens (beings from other planets) would arrive on Earth. This did not happen.

In 2004, she claimed that Osama Bin Laden was already dead, but he was found and killed in 2011.

In one of her books, she wrote that a vaccine for HIV would be discovered in 2005—but that still hasn't happened.

There are many other predictions we won't analyze here, because the purpose of this message isn't to discredit anyone personally, but to help you open your eyes. We must not be swept away by every so-called revelation in these last days.

Let's go back to her prophecy about the year 3020 and the appearance of vampires. Many have believed this just because her COVID-19 prophecy seemed to come true. Some have even developed the idea that this Earth will continue to exist until the year 3000 and beyond.

However, it is important to understand that even if someone gives a prophecy that comes true, but it contradicts the Word of God, that prophecy must be rejected. The Bible warns us clearly in Deuteronomy 13:1-3:

"If a prophet or a dreamer of dreams arises among you and gives you a sign or wonder, and the sign or wonder that he tells you comes to pass, and if he says, 'Let us go after other gods,' which you have not known, 'and let us serve them,' you shall not listen to the words of that prophet or that dreamer of dreams. For the Lord your God is testing you, to know whether you love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul."

So do not be quick to accept any prophecy just because it happens—test everything by the Word of God.

There are many people who also predicted the coronavirus pandemic in great detail, yet they were not Christians. Even fictional books such as "The Eyes of Darkness" describe a similar virus. You can find many of these on the internet. Also, God can send a true prophet who gives an accurate prophecy—and yet that same person may later instruct people to act against God's Word. In that case, God Himself is testing the hearts of His people to see if they truly love His truth or not.

“For false christs and false prophets will arise and perform great signs and wonders, so as to lead astray, if possible, even the elect.”
Matthew 24:24

Nowhere in Scripture is there any prophecy about the coming of vampires or alien beings from other planets. These are scientific imaginations and demonic deceptions that contradict Scripture.

Ecclesiastes 1:9 reminds us:

“What has been is what will be, and what has been done is what will be done, and there is nothing new under the sun.”

The Bible has already prophesied natural disasters like plagues (pandemics), famines, earthquakes, wars, false prophets, and the Antichrist. These are all scriptural and consistent with the prophetic word. But nowhere does the Bible teach about the resurrection of undead beings that feed on blood. According to Scripture, those who will rise again are the righteous and the wicked—the righteous for eternal life and the wicked for judgment—not to drink blood!

Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life. Whoever believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live." John 11:25

"Do not marvel at this, for an hour is coming when all who are in the tombs will hear his voice and come out, those who have done good to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil to the resurrection of judgment." John 5:28-29

Only Jesus holds the keys to death and Hades—not Satan. Satan cannot resurrect anyone. He lost that authority a long time ago (Revelation 1:18). So ask yourself—who will resurrect these so-called vampires to drink people's blood? Jesus? It's an obvious contradiction and a deception.

These are the last days. Anyone telling you that the Earth will remain for another 1,000 years is misleading you. It is a scheme of Satan to convince people that Christ's return is far off. Yet, the signs Jesus gave us are all being fulfilled. Now is the time to prepare, not to chase after strange revelations. There will be more of these as the days draw closer, and if you're not grounded in Scripture, you will be misled.

“Let no one deceive you in any way. For that day will not come, unless the rebellion comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction.”

2 Thessalonians 2:3

These are not times of vampires or aliens. The spirit of the Antichrist is already at work.

Repent today. Accept Christ if you have not. Prepare for His second coming.

Shalom.
