

QUESTION:

Does 1 Corinthians 7:14 mean that if an unbeliever marries a believer, they are automatically made righteous or saved through the faith of their believing spouse?

1 Corinthians 7:13-14 (NIV):

“And if a woman has a husband who is not a believer and he is willing to live with her, she must not divorce him. For the unbelieving husband has been sanctified through his wife, and the unbelieving wife has been sanctified through her believing husband. Otherwise, your children would be unclean, but as it is, they are holy.”

Answer:

No this verse does not mean that an unbelieving spouse is saved or made righteous before God simply because they are married to a believer. The broader biblical context makes it clear that salvation is a personal matter, not transferable by association or marriage.

Galatians 6:5 (NIV):

“For the Unbelieving Spouse is Sanctified through the Believing Spouse”

“For each one should carry their own load.”

Romans 14:12 (ESV):

“So then each of us will give an account of himself to God.”

“Sanctified”

The word “sanctified” (Greek: ἡγιάσται, hēgiastai) in 1 Corinthians 7:14 does not mean “saved.” It means “set apart” or “made holy” in a relational or ceremonial sense, not a salvific one.

Paul is explaining that the presence of a believing spouse in a mixed faith marriage sanctifies the union and family in a relational and covenantal sense. This does not imply the unbelieving spouse is spiritually regenerated or justified before God.

Rather, the believer brings a spiritual influence and covering into the home, which allows the marriage to remain honorable before God (cf. Hebrews 13:4) and ensures that the children of such a union are not considered ritually “unclean.”

“For the Unbelieving Spouse is Sanctified through the Believing Spouse”

1 Corinthians 7:14 (NLT):

“For the Christian wife brings holiness to her marriage, and the Christian husband brings holiness to his marriage. Otherwise, your children would not be holy, but now they are holy.”

Does This Mean the Unbeliever Is Automatically Saved?

Absolutely not. Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, not by proximity to someone who believes.

Ephesians 2:8-9 (NIV):

“For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith and this is not from yourselves, it is the gift of God not by works, so that no one can boast.”

John 3:18 (ESV):

“Whoever believes in him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe is condemned already, because he has not believed in the name of the only Son of God.”

So, while the unbelieving spouse may experience the blessings and influence of living with a godly partner including love, prayer, godly behavior, and biblical instruction they are not saved unless they personally believe in Christ.

This is why Paul goes on to say:

1 Corinthians 7:16 (NIV):

“How do you know, wife, whether you will save your husband? Or, how do you know, husband, whether you will save your wife?”

This question affirms that salvation is uncertain and not guaranteed, even in a godly home. Yet, it also implies that the believer should live in such a way as to give their spouse every opportunity to come to faith.

Many real life testimonies confirm what Paul describes. A spouse may eventually come to faith after witnessing consistent godly conduct and prayer from their believing partner:

1 Peter 3:1-2 (NIV):

“Wives, in the same way submit yourselves to your own husbands so that, if any of them do not believe the word, they may be won over without words by the behavior of their wives, when they see the purity and reverence of your lives.”

However, this spiritual influence is not a substitute for personal faith. An unbelieving spouse who continues to reject Christ will remain lost, despite being married to a believer (cf. John 3:36).

Do Not Marry an Unbeliever

While 1 Corinthians 7 addresses believers who were already married to unbelievers before coming to faith, Scripture elsewhere clearly teaches that Christians should not knowingly enter into marriage with unbelievers.

2 Corinthians 6:14 (NIV):

“Do not be yoked together with unbelievers. For what do righteousness and wickedness have in common? Or what fellowship can light have with darkness?”

Entering a marital covenant with an unbeliever often leads to spiritual conflict, divided priorities, and compromised faith. Many modern Christian marriage struggles stem from ignoring this command.

If You're Already Married to an Unbeliever

If you're already in such a marriage, take courage God can still use you as a vessel of grace and truth. You have a responsibility to:

- Pray persistently for your spouse's salvation.
- Live a godly life that reflects Christ.
- Model biblical love, patience, and humility.
- Share the Gospel as opportunities arise, with wisdom and gentleness (cf. Colossians 4:5-6).

Your influence is significant, but your spouse must ultimately choose Christ for themselves.

“For the Unbelieving Spouse is Sanctified through the Believing Spouse”

While 1 Corinthians 7:14 highlights the sanctifying influence of a believer in a mixed marriage, it does not suggest that salvation is automatically granted through marriage. Each person must individually respond to the Gospel. Nevertheless, your faithful witness as a spouse can be a powerful instrument in God’s hands to bring your partner to salvation.

May the Lord give you strength, wisdom, and grace in your marriage. Remain faithful and trust that God can use your life to lead others to Christ.
