

Answer:

To understand whether shaving one's hair or beard is a sin, we must first reflect on a related question: Is it sinful to shape or trim your eyebrows?

If shaping eyebrows is considered inappropriate because it alters one's God given appearance for the sake of vanity or conformity to worldly trends, then it follows that shaving the hair on one's head or beard might also fall under similar concerns. All of these involve the removal or reshaping of hair that naturally grows on the head a part of our body created by God. To condemn one and excuse the other may reveal a form of hypocrisy.

This may be difficult to accept, but Scripture calls us to live according to God's truth, not according to cultural trends. I, too, once followed these practices, but as I grew in the Word and understood God's standards more clearly, I changed and I will continue to change as the Holy Spirit reveals more to me.

What Does the Bible Say?

Leviticus 19:27 (ESV) says:

“You shall not round off the hair on your temples or mar the edges of your beard.”

In this passage, God is giving laws to the Israelites to separate them from the idolatrous nations surrounding them. Pagans in Canaan often shaved or marked their hair and beards in ritualistic patterns as acts of worship to false gods. God's people were to be set apart holy in appearance, conduct, and worship.

The Hebrew word used here for “mar” (shachath) means to ruin, destroy, or corrupt. The implication is that shaping one's beard or temples (sides of the head) in specific ways can be seen as tampering with God's design for our appearance, especially when done to imitate worldly or pagan styles.

Our Bodies as Temples of the Holy Spirit

1 Corinthians 3:16-17 (NKJV) says:

“Do you not know that you are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?

If anyone defiles the temple of God, God will destroy him. For the temple of God is holy, which temple you are.”

This passage teaches that our physical bodies are sacred because the Holy Spirit lives within us. Therefore, how we present ourselves physically matters. While the passage primarily refers to spiritual and moral purity, the principle of honoring God with our bodies extends to how we treat and represent ourselves externally.

Romans 12:1-2 (ESV) reinforces this:

“I appeal to you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship. Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind...”

Conformity to worldly standards in grooming especially when driven by vanity, pride, or imitation of ungodly trends can conflict with our call to be distinct as followers of Christ.

Should Christians Avoid All Grooming?

This does not mean believers should be unkempt or careless in appearance. Scripture values cleanliness and order. For instance, 2 Samuel 12:20 shows King David grooming himself after a time of mourning. The key is not in grooming but in intent. Are we doing it to honor God and present ourselves well or are we driven by vanity and a desire to fit into worldly molds?

Christians can be neat, clean, and presentable without altering their God given identity or imitating patterns associated with worldliness or rebellion against God's order.

A Call to Authentic Holiness

Our external appearance communicates something about our internal convictions. If we appear no different from the world, how will unbelievers see the distinctiveness of the gospel? Jesus said in Matthew 5:14-16 (ESV):

“You are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hidden... Let your light shine before others, so that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven."

Let us not present a lukewarm faith neither hot nor cold one that Jesus sternly warns against:

Revelation 3:16 (ESV):

"So, because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of my mouth."

As believers, we are called to pursue holiness in every area of life including how we care for and present our bodies. Shaving or reshaping hair or beards becomes problematic when it's done in imitation of worldly styles, as an act of vanity, or in contradiction to the set-apart identity we are called to uphold.

We are temples of the Holy Spirit. Let's honor that temple in a way that glorifies God and reflects the holiness to which we've been called.

Maranatha Come, Lord Jesus!
