

Question: If someone sins during a fast, does it invalidate the fast? For example, if a person commits a sin like adultery, is the fast considered broken?

Answer: To understand this, it is essential to grasp the spiritual purpose of fasting. Fasting is not merely abstaining from food; it is a spiritual discipline designed to weaken the desires of the flesh and strengthen the influence of the Holy Spirit in our lives. The Apostle Paul explains this tension between the flesh and the spirit:

Galatians 5:16-17 (ESV):

“But I say, walk by the Spirit, and you will not gratify the desires of the flesh. For the desires of the flesh are against the Spirit, and the desires of the Spirit are against the flesh, for these are opposed to each other, to keep you from doing the things you want.”

When someone eats or indulges in bodily desires during a fast, they submit to the flesh rather than the Spirit, thereby breaking the fast. The same principle applies to sins such as adultery. Sexual immorality is not only a spiritual violation but also a bodily one, directly opposing the purpose of fasting, which is to bring the body under the guidance of the Spirit.

Question: If someone sins during a fast, does it invalidate the fast? For example, if a person commits a sin like adultery, is the fast considered broken?

1 Corinthians 6:18 (NIV):

“Flee from sexual immorality. All other sins a person commits are outside the body, but whoever sins sexually, sins against their own body.”

This passage shows that sexual sin is intimately connected to the body, meaning that committing such a sin during a fast directly contradicts the spiritual goal of subduing the flesh.

Additional Theological Insights:

1. Fasting as Spiritual Warfare: Fasting is a tool for spiritual breakthrough (Matthew 17:21, KJV: “Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting”). When we sin during a fast, we undermine the spiritual authority we are meant to exercise.
2. Repentance Restores Spiritual Alignment: Scripture teaches that broken fellowship with God caused by sin can be restored through repentance. True repentance involves a heartfelt turning away from sin (1 John 1:9, ESV: “If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness”). After repentance, one may resume fasting under the Spirit’s guidance.

Question: If someone sins during a fast, does it invalidate the fast? For example, if a person commits a sin like adultery, is the fast considered broken?

3. Fasting and Holiness: Fasting is a form of sanctification—a way to honor God with our bodies. When the body is involved in sin during a fast, it defiles the intended holy purpose. Thus, restoring the fast requires intentional repentance and renewed consecration to God.

Practical Application: Anyone who sins during a fast, especially a sin like sexual immorality, should immediately repent, seek the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and consider fasting again at a later time with renewed spiritual focus.

May the Lord give us strength to walk in the Spirit, control the desires of the flesh, and honor Him through our fasting.

Share this teaching with others so they may understand the spiritual significance of fasting and the importance of holiness in body and spirit.

Question: If someone sins during a fast, does it invalidate the fast? For example, if a person commits a sin like adultery, is the fast considered broken?

Share on:
WhatsApp