

May the name of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, be praised forever.

Did you know that acts of faith can transform your identity giving you a fresh start and opening new doors of favor and authority?

Let's consider the biblical example of David and Goliath. Before David defeated Goliath, he served in King Saul's palace, playing the harp to soothe Saul whenever an evil spirit troubled him.

1 Samuel 16:21-23 (ESV) says:

“David came to Saul and entered his service. Saul loved him very much, and David became his armor-bearer. Whenever the harmful spirit from God came upon Saul, David would take the harp and play it. Saul was refreshed and well, and the harmful spirit departed.”

This shows that David was already trusted by Saul, who appointed him as his armor-bearer a position of closeness and responsibility (cf. 1 Sam. 16:21). Yet, despite this acceptance, David's true identity and authority had not yet been fully revealed or realized.

After David's courageous act of faith in defeating Goliath, Saul's response reveals a shift in recognition: he asks, "Whose son are you?" (1 Sam. 17:58 ESV), indicating that David's victory had unveiled a new dimension of his identity and calling.

Theologically, this highlights how faith-activated obedience to God's calling leads to a deeper revelation of who we are in His plan. David's victory over Goliath symbolizes the believer's triumph over sin, fear, and obstacles through reliance on God's power (cf. 1 John 5:4).

1 Samuel 17:54-58 (ESV) recounts:

"David took the Philistine's head to Jerusalem. When Saul saw David going out against the Philistine, he asked, 'Whose son is this youth?'... David answered, 'I am the son of your servant Jesse of Bethlehem.'"

This new acknowledgment reflects how a decisive act of faith opens doors to divine favor and changes social and spiritual status. David's courage brought him into a new realm of God's blessing and human recognition.

Furthermore, 1 Samuel 18:1 (ESV) says:

“Jonathan's soul became bound to David's soul, and Jonathan loved him as himself.”

This deep friendship reflects the spiritual bond and transfer of favor and authority, showing how faith and obedience can also affect relationships and community standing.

The “Goliath” in your life represents any formidable obstacle sin being the chief adversary (Romans 6:12-14). Sin hinders our progress and conceals the favor God desires to pour upon us. But when we confront sin through faith and repentance turning away from all sinful behaviors as genuine repentance requires (Acts 3:19) we defeat that Goliath.

True repentance isn't merely asking for forgiveness; it involves a heartfelt turning from sin and separation from influences that encourage it (2 Corinthians 7:10). This may include distancing oneself from unhealthy relationships, activities, or even attire that invites temptation.

By “putting on the new self” in Christ (Ephesians 4:22-24) and “arming yourself with the whole armor of God” (Ephesians 6:10-18), you not only defeat your personal Goliaths but also step into a new identity marked by God's favor and blessing.

So, what giant are you facing today? What act of faith will you take to claim your new identity in Christ?

Shalom.
