There are three main areas where the church is called upon to contribute:

- The church should be a moral compass for the nation.
- The church should be a voice for the marginalized and oppressed.
- The church should be a center for social and economic development.

The church has a unique role to play in Kenya. It is called upon to be a moral compass, a voice for the marginalized, and a center for social and economic development. The church should be a force for good in the world, promoting peace, justice, and the well-being of all people.

The church should be a moral compass for the nation, a voice for the marginalized and oppressed, and a center for social and economic development.
